Microsoft Outlook 2003 has a feature that lets you recover your deleted items after you've emptied your deleted Items folder. If you click on the Tools menu, you'll see a Recover Deleted Items option. You will find though, that the option is often greyed out. This can be a real pain if you've just mistekenly Deleted an item. Here's how to enable the option:

- Close Microsoft Outlook 2003
- Press Windows key + R (This will bring up the Run dialog)
- In the _ dialog box type regedit and press Enter

- Navigate to: HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Software\Microsoft\Exchange\Client\Options

- On the right hand window pane you will see a few string values. Ignore them. Rightclick anywhere in the white space and select New->DWORD Value

- Type in DumpsterAlwaysOn as the DWORD's name. Now double-click on DumpsterAlwaysOn and change the value to [See pic below]

You can now close the Registry Editor window.

- Open Microsoft Outlook 2003. Click Tools->Recover Deleted Items

- You should see a list of items you recently deleted. Select what you want restored and click the Recover Selected Items button. [See pic below]

E S X
Subject	Deleted On	From
FW: Ext: 759	4/23/2007 10:57 AM	Pam Naidoo
RE: BRIDGEPORT RRL-MT/FULL P	4/24/2007 12:32 PM	Keegan Naidoo
Please update your calls	4/25/2007 10:21 AM	Thandi Dano

The items will then appear in your Deleted Items folder.